A man calls your telephone number stating you are eligible for a federal educational grant and says he works for the government. The subject states a certain amount of money is required in order to process and approve the loan. The subject asks for your checking account and routing number in order to make the payment for the fee. The subject may also instruct you to purchase a pre-paid credit card, commonly known as a green-dot card or other type of credit card from a store and read him the number to make the payment.
